SAN JOSE, Calif., March 6, 2019 /Christian Newswire/ -- Conservative Internet leader Steven Andrew launched a new social network to offer a choice to people censored by Facebook or are concerned with privacy issues. It is for all who love America. "I was shadow-banned by Facebook and was blocked from 99% of my 5 million person monthly reach, so I decided to make www.USA.Life, the Facebook alternative, where conservative views are openly shared."

Nearly 10,000 people joined before USA.Life announced it's official launch to the media today. Another 12,000 pre-registered and will be emailed to activate their accounts. People are signing up fast as soon as the word gets out. Andrew believes one million users will join soon. "What a refreshing alternative to Facebook! Nice to see Christian and conservative posts," said Donna Bowman, a descendant of the founding fathers.

"I love this website," said Robert Campbell.

Andrew repeatedly asked Facebook to stop censoring him. "I posted a picture of George Washington praying at Valley Forge and that was censored." Many people across the country have experienced limits on access to their friends for posting conservative ideas, support of President Trump or Christian beliefs.

"It's obvious the Social Media Giants are not playing fair," said Andrew. "They slant what people see to promote a Globalist agenda that is anti-American. People have cried out for a pro-American site to communicate with their friends."

Andrew keeps all user information private and does not sell it to marketers.

"USA.Life is needed, because Facebook's censorship affects elections, finances, relationships and national security," he said.

"There is no social media like USA.Life that unites and heals the nation," he said.

Andrew has led multi-million dollar initiatives for Better Homes and Gardens, Stanford and Sega.

Users are excited about the new conservative alternative to Facebook. "I am emailing and telling everyone I know about this new platform," said Olivia Reid.

Andrew is available for interviews.
